Great people make FDL, Dodge Counties a great place to live

The Fond du Lac and Dodge County communities are a desirable place to live and work thanks to those driven and generous people who live just down the street. It is because of these individuals that positive change and inspiration can take place and develop a promising future.

The Reporter's Success publication celebrates the many individuals who, through their own determination and will, have achieved much, not only for themselves but also for their community. Throughout the year, we received nominations for those whose accomplishments should be honored and applauded and published so others may find inspiration. Success has become a much anticipated publication and a positive beacon of light in our strong and tight-knit communities. Bill Berry, Mark Pieplow, Sara Immel and Joe Guyette are among the fine people who have the zeal and heart to achieve great things while helping others along the way. While many of the nominees are humble about their success, their work has not gone unnoticed and will resonate in the community long after the stories have been published.

Success is also a testament to how our area communities pull together to show support. A good support system, whether from a small group of friends and family or from an entire city, can move mountains, and in turn allow individuals, like Mel Kolstad, Kali LaCount or Derek Semenas to reach lofty goals.

This publication points out that success is often linked to one's outlook on life. Mark Pieplow has educated countless students not only how to play music, but how to apply being part of a group to real life.

While success comes in many shapes and forms, at different times in our lives and for different reasons, one thing remains true: without the successes of people like those in this publication, our communities would not be the place to live, work and play that they are.
