Alumni director shares alumni connection

As a fourth-grader, he ran through Naber Hall wearing a Marian sweatshirt while visiting his older brother, Greg. Marian drew him back for his own college experience, and now, as Director of Alumni and Parent Relations, Stephen Matz wants others to know about Marian University's value and its family feel.

The Chicago native recalled how he went to a Cubs game at Wrigley Field with a friend who had attended Auburn University. "I ran into two or three Marian people at the game. My friend said, 'I've never heard of that school and they're everywhere,'" Matz said, adding that he noted there were probably quite a few Auburn alums at the game, and the friend simply didn't know them. "Marian fosters an environment of friendliness and connection."

After earning a bachelor's degree in Business Administration and Management in 2001 and playing on Marian's basketball team, Matz worked for Baxter Healthcare and in corporate real estate, where he handled development and marketing.

"With this position, it's personal. This is my alma mater and I care about it," said Matz, who worked in Marian's admissions office as an undergraduate. "I want people in all the surrounding states to have Marian on their radar."
